This allocation gives free printing for 100 black & white pages, or 20 color pages or a combination of these two print options. This allocation works on a use-it-or-lose-it system; allocated funds do not roll over to the next semester, and the allocation account is reset to full allotment each new semester. Once the student allocation account is depleted, there is a cost for printing.

Concordia University Texas	No fee				No cost	Yes - PaperCut (campus-wide)	Printing - Campus wide includes our "on the ground" centers. I don't know about our online students, but everyone else pays a "student services fee" of $245 a semester to cover printing, student activities, and "related costs." Students get 500 "copies" a semester, but if they run out they can have IT reload 100 more with just a phone call or online survey in which they help IT determine why they need more. No charge for the original amount (other than the fee) and no cost for additional loadings at this time.
Dallas Baptist University	No fee				10¢/page	No	Printing - Print management is handled by the IT department
East Texas Baptist University	No fee				Students are allowed "free" copies at the beginning of each semester (250 for undergrad, 500 for grad). When those are used up the students may purchase additional print pages for $0.05 per page. The amount per purchase for color pages is five times as much as black and white, or $0.25 per page - they don't actually "buy" color copies, they just know that 5 pages will be deducted from their print account for every one color page printed.	Yes - "home-grown system" (campus-wide)	Printing - We have found that once we put a limit on "free" printing our costs have remained fairly stable. Few students go over their original print allocation.

Angelina College	No fee				10¢ B&W; 25¢ color	No	Printing - While the library has lobbied hard for the last five years for a cost recovery print management system - oddly we have not yet adopted one. It is something that does not directly seem to affect enrollment nor administration and so print management remains low on the priority list. Of course all copying numbers are declining across campus at an alarming rate for a variety of reasons which will probably seriously mitigate the need for a print management system in a few years anyway.
Austin Community College	No fee				No cost (10¢ at Pinnacle)	No

Five pages of color copies are free, then it's $0.50/page (every day)	No	Printing - We are talking about implementing a print management system for the library to allow the computer to do the policing/counting. It is difficult for us to identify non-students who are not supposed to print, or who have a designated printer and are charged for their copies. It does not appear that the College as a whole is interested in a print management system; most departments send their students to the library to print.
