Leading In: Managing for and Living with Dramatic Change in Today's Library Settings	Most institutions, businesses, environments do NOT radically and dramatically change all at once - but if the pandemic taught managers and staff ANYTHING - it was that almost overnight, libraries of all types and sizes changed - with some changes permanent. Managers and their staff need not struggle with the concept of change - no matter how little or how large it was - instead they need to identify specific change, determine the "life" of the change and choose tools and techniques to not only implement change but communicate those changes to their constituents.	Julie Todaro, Austin Community College	Summit 2022	57 minutes
If: The Future of Libraries	In this presentation, Charlotte Mecklenburg Library's CEO and Chief Librarian, Marcellus "MT" Turner, discusses the future of libraries. How do library service practitioners, as well as the institutions themselves, navigate emerging technology, corporate influence, user expectations, increasing urbanization, climate change and more? And does any of it really matter? It does. Enjoy this deep dive on exploring what those in library professions must consider next.	MT Turner, Charlotte Mecklenburg Library	Summit 2022	25 minutes
Building Cultures of Respect	Challenge yourself to question and deconstruct the concepts of diversity and respect and learn how to be effective in creating contexts that are safe[r] for everyone. Participants will define the building blocks of a culture of respect and work on an implementation plan.	Federico Salas-Isnardi, City of Houston	TLA 2021	45:50
Organizational Overhaul	West Texas A&M University's Cornette Library made dramatic	Kelly Hoppe, West Texas	Summit 2022	42 minutes

	organizational changes in 2018 that impacted the University community, the library, and several individual career trajectories. Growth in libraries can encompass changes in services provided in addition to the physical environment and professional development. Join two academic librarians who were promoted to administrative roles as they share their experiences with a library reorganization and learn how it all connects to the ACRL Standards for Libraries in Higher Education. Organizational Overhaul: We Did it. You Can Too!
